Robin McKean

Senior Vice President of Integrated Services

Robin McKean serves as Senior Vice President of Integrated Services for Buffalo Rock Company and is responsible for leading information technology, corporate marketing equipment, fleet, safety, security, and facilities initiatives. Robin joined Buffalo Rock Company in 2012 as Director of Project Management.

Originally from Mobile, AL, Robin attended The University of Alabama, graduating magna cum laude with a bachelor of science in management and a minor in Spanish. Robin also holds a master of business administration from Auburn University with a concentration in marketing.

After starting his career with Johnson and Johnson as a pharmaceutical sales representative in Montgomery, AL, Robin moved to Birmingham to join Vulcan Materials Company. During this time, he worked in various roles, most notably in accounting and information technology, and managed teams in the United States and Mexico.

Since joining Buffalo Rock, Robin has served in roles including project management, information technology, and applications support. His teams have led transformational processes and system upgrades in retail, full line vending, and field service. Robin's passion is to provide excellent service to all customers, both internally and externally, at Buffalo Rock.

Robin and his wife have three daughters. He enjoys all things sports-related, spending time outdoors, and is an active member of Church of the Highlands.
