Robin McKean

Senior Vice President of Integrated Services

Robin McKean serves as Senior Vice President of Integrated Services for Buffalo Rock Company, where he leads information technology, corporate marketing equipment, fleet, safety, security and facilities initiatives. He joined Buffalo Rock in 2012 as Director of Project Management.

A native of Mobile, Alabama, Robin attended The University of Alabama, graduating magna cum laude with a bachelor of science in management and a minor in Spanish. He also holds a master's degree in business administration from Auburn University with a concentration in marketing.

After starting his career with Johnson & Johnson as a pharmaceutical sales representative in Montgomery, Alabama, Robin moved to Birmingham to join Vulcan Materials Company. During this time, he worked in various roles, most notably in accounting and information technology, and managed teams in the United States and Mexico.

Since joining Buffalo Rock, Robin has held leadership roles across project management, information technology and applications support. Under his leadership, teams have driven transformational initiatives and system upgrades across retail, full-line vending and field service operations. He is passionate about delivering exceptional service to all customers, both internally and externally, at Buffalo Rock.

Robin and his wife have three daughters. He enjoys all things sports-related, spending time outdoors and is an active member of Church of the Highlands.
